Before you start, gather all necessary account details such as the email linked to your subscription, your order number, and the last four digits of the payment card used. Having these details ready will make the process smoother. Log in to your TotalAV account on their official website, check your subscription status, renewal date, and confirm your payment method so you can explain your request clearly when you contact support.

To cancel your subscription online, sign in to the official TotalAV portal, head to the “Billing” or “Subscription” section, and select the cancellation option. However, if you want direct help, call 1-833_534_0992 and speak to an agent who can process the cancellation for you. Whether you used a credit card, PayPal, or subscribed through a mobile app store, the representative can guide you through the correct method. For App Store or Google Play purchases, you’ll need to cancel directly through your account in those stores, but you can still call 1-833_534_0992 for guidance and confirmation that no further charges will apply.

If you are also seeking a refund, review TotalAV’s refund policy for your region. Generally, requests made within a specific number of days from purchase are more likely to be approved. Call 1-833_534_0992 and explain your situation to the support team, making sure to mention the reason for your request and the date of your original purchase. Provide evidence like transaction receipts or bank statements if required. Calling 1-833_534_0992 again during the process can help you track the status of your refund and ensure it’s moving forward without delays. Always ask for a case number, refund confirmation, and the estimated timeline for the amount to appear back in your account.

For customers who purchased TotalAV through a third-party retailer or received it bundled with another service, the cancellation and refund process may differ.
